

---

Around the World in Seventy-Two Days

---

Chapter 1 A Proposal to Girdle the Earth
(15:39)

Chapter 2 The Start (20:25)

Chapter 3 Southampton to Jules Verne's
(16:56)

Chapter 4 Jules Verne at Home (16:34)

Chapter 5 On to Brindisi (23:13)

Chapter 6 An American Heiress (17:57)

Chapter 7 "Two Beautiful Black Eyes"
(23:39)

Chapter 8 Aden to Colombo (15:22)

Chapter 9 Delayed Five Days (39:44)

Chapter 10 In the Pirate Seas (29:16)

Chapter 11 Against the Monsoon (16:51)

Chapter 12 British China (28:06)

Chapter 13 Christmas in Canton (29:55)

Chapter 14 To the Land of the Mikado (5:21)

Chapter 15 One hundred and twenty hours in Japan (28:19)

Chapter 16 Across the Pacific (11:22)

Chapter 17 Across the Continent (15:11)

Chapter 18 The Record (11:41)

Total Run Time: 6:05:31

In 1888, reporter "Nellie Bly" asked whether it was really possible to go around the world in eighty days, as Jules Verne imagined in fiction.

A year later, with two days' notice, and carrying only one handbag for luggage, "Bly" (Elizabeth Cochrane) began the trip. Her readers back in America avidly followed her progress, which she reported through telegrams as she traveled. Though she wrote with the biases common for her era and class, this remains a spirited and humorous look at world of the late 19th Century

Read by Mary Reagan

LibriVox volunteers record chapter of book in the public domain and release the audio files back onto the net. Our goal is to make all public domain books available as free audio book. We are a totally volunteer, open course, free content, public domain project. For more information or to volunteer, visit www.librivox.org